Dear Mr. Jaffe:

I am requesting that the FDA ban the practice of 'forced molting' in 'laying' birds because it is done to profit the egg industry and is of no benefit to the birds whatsoever. Scientific studies show that the stress of this practice results in an increase in intestinal Salmonella and the transmission of the organism to uninfected hens.

Additionally, because these birds are intentionally starved, they constantly contaminate feathers in an effort to reduce their hunger. Protect the birds and consumers, not egg industry profits. what kind of human being thinks-up these type of cruel experiments on animals? how can we allow this to go on??

Sincerely,
